Notice to Contractors.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received by the undersigned, Acting Commissioner of Public Works, for the 2nd Judicial Circuit, at the Internal Improvement Office in Belleville, Illinois, on Tuesday, the second day of January next, until the hour of 2 o'clock, P. M. of that day, for the Grading, Bridging, and Masonry of about 15 miles of the Alton and Mount Carmel Rail Road, extending from the city of Alton to Edwardsville.

The line will be divided into sections of convenient length; and most of them will embrace jobs, deserving the attention of skillful and competent Contractors; among which are viaducts over Shield's Creek, Wood River, Indian Creek and Cahokia Creek; and a considerable amount of heavy embankment in the valley of Cahokia.

Plans and Profiles of the line, and drawings of the different constructions on it, together with specifications of the manner of executing the work, will be exhibited at the District, or Internal Improvement Office at Belleville, ten days previous to the day of letting; and all other information in relation to the work, will be afforded on application at the above office.

Contractors will be required to make an efficient commencement of their respective jobs within Sixty days after the letting; and to have the letting fully completed, for the reception of the superstructure of the Rail Way, on or before the first day of November, 1838.

Recommendations will be expected, in all cases, in which the Contractors are not personally known to the undersigned or to the Associate Commissioner attending the letting.

For the information of contractors abroad, it may be well to state, that this line of road passes from the noted and flourishing City of Alton to Edwardsville, the county seat of Madison county, through a rich and fertile section of country, long settled by industrious and wealthy farmers, and calculated to furnish supplies to the contractors, on the cheapest terms and in abundance.

Proposals

WILL also be received at the same time and place, for the execution of the contemplated improvement at the Kaskaskia River and at Shoal Creek, on the line of the Great Western Mail Route, between Vincennes and St. Louis; said jobs not having been let on the 9th inst., as heretofore advertised, in consequence of the exorbitancy of the bids.

The work at Kaskaskia lies in and near Carlyle, and consists of a large amount of embankment, and extensive bridging, chiefly over the river bottom land, &c., and the work at Shoal Creek, also consists of heavy Embankments, Culvert, Bridge, &c.

This work will be required to be commenced within Twenty days after the letting, and to be completed on or before the 1st day of September following

Proposals for any of the above work may be directed to the undersigned, endorsed, "Proposals for Work to be let on the 2nd of January, 1838;" and will be received at any time previous to 4 o'clock, P. M. on the day of Letting, and will be duly considered; but if sent by Mail must be post paid.

A TALE OF THE TIMES.

CHAPTER III.

A COLLEGE SCRAPE.

For two hours the sounds of boisterous merriment might be heard issuing from an upper room in the ancient inn of Cambridge, at times swelling into peals of jovial laughter, and anon dying away in the cadence of a lively song. A little before one these sounds ceased rather abruptly, and soon after a clatter of steps was heard on the stairs; then the whole party emerged into the street, bearing one of their number in their arms. Something had evidently taken place which had partially overpowered the excitement of the wine, and rendered them comparatively sober. They did not seem, however, so much terrified, as vexed and embarrassed.

"I thought something of that sort would happen if we brought such a milksop among us," said one.

"But who would have imagined," observed Lippett, "that such a chicken-hearted fellow could have turned out a fighting cock!"

"Wine produces strange metamorphoses," said Jo Van Bourgh; "poor fellow, he will feel this in the morning. Let him on his feet, I think he will stand."

The cool air had partially dissipated the lethargy which had come over Duplessis, and he was able, with some assistance, to keep his feet; no sooner, however, had he proceeded a few steps than the wine began to produce on him its more disgusting effects. He presented a pitiful spectacle.

"Let us take him to his room as soon as possible," said Stacey hurriedly; "I am sorry I ever brought him here. However, he is only paying his initiation-fee."

"It must be a pretty large sum, then," said Lippett, "for he has cast up his accounts before he settled it."

"It was lucky you were not hurt, Stacey," remarked another as they proceeded towards the college. "I never saw a man more furious."

"I have learned something of the management of such individuals," replied Robert; "I was very much surprized, though, at first.—Now, then, fellows, be very quiet in going up stairs; two will be enough. Here John and Harvey, you room nearest to him; suppose you go with him, and put him to bed."

All this conversation was wholly unheard by the wretched object of it, though it passed over and around him. While the two above named were engaged in their rather difficult office, the rest adjourned to the front of the largest building, and Hants proposed to conclude the services by "Nancy Dawson," sung to tune of Old Hundred with variations, under Professor Slocum's windows. Van Burgh, however, objected to this, as he knew that the Professor had gone into town to a grand conversazione party.

"In that case," said Stacey, thoughtfully, "he will not be out here before two."

"And what of that?" inquired Jo., "we cannot sit up here till then to serenade him."

"No!—but I'll tell you what we can do.—He seldom locks his room, and at all events, we can force it open. You see that baggage-wagon of Earl's.

"Well!" said the others, gathering round him.

"I propose to carry up that baggage-wagon into the Professor's room, and leave it there.—Just imagine the old fellow opening his door and finding his whole house room occupied by a foul, rickety baggage-wagon! 'Faith, he'll take it for the ghost of Pharaoh's chariot."

"But you can't be in earnest, Bob. What do you mean?"

"I mean as I say. We have nothing to do but just to take out the linch-pins and bolts, draw a few nails, and take the whole to pieces. I have seen a blacksmith do it. Then we can carry it by peace-meal up stairs and put it together there as snugly as ever. It can be done in half an hour. What do you say?"

It was just the mad-cap project to take with all in their present condition—and though some doubted the possibility of accomplishing it, yet every one set about it with zeal. With the aid of two or three hammers, which were easily procured, the wagon was in fifteen minutes fairly analyzed (as Lippet expressed it) into its original elements. Wheels, axletrees, boards, and pins, were immediately transferred to the Professor's apartment, which was only up a single flight of stairs. The secrecy of the operation was insured by the lateness of the hour and the absence of the moon. The stars, however, shone brightly enough to aid them in their labor, and seemed to wink at them from their hemisphere, as if enjoying the sport. The work of putting together the materials, owing to some mistakes which were committed in their confusion, occupied a longer time than was anticipated, and when all was finished it wanted but a few minutes of two. Having thus accomplished the wildest freak of which college tradition preserves the remembrance, they prepared to retreat to their rooms—and many were the jests broken at the anticipated amazement and indignation of the Professor when he should find his sanctum thus strongly invaded. Stacey was the last to leave the room—and it struck him, as he was on the point of retiring that it would cap the joke to place in the wagon, a single volume of the Professor's writings, to represent the load for the conveyance of which it had been drawn up to its present situation. He, therefore, suffered his companions to proceed, and placing his dark lantern, open, on a table, went toward the book closet. While engaged in opening the door of this, he heard, as he supposed, one of his companions ascend the stairs; the exclamation of surprise followed, and, turning round, he beheld Professor Slocum!

When Luther looked up from his writing desk, in the ancient castle, and saw the Prince of Darkness standing before him, his sensations probably resembled, in some respects, though not in all, those of our friend, at this Gorgon spectacle. The fumes of the wine were by this time nearly dispelled, and his situation presented itself in its true light—a mixture of the ludicrous and the terrible.

The Professor cast a glance around the room, in which astonishment and indignation were curiously mingled with a strong desire to laugh, "And so, sir, it is to you, I suppose, that I am indebted for this addition to my furniture.—And what account do you give of yourself, sir?"

Robert had by this time recovered his self-possession, and replied with much humility that his name was Stacey, and that "knowing the Professor to be an admirer of Homer, he thought that a model of an ancient war chariot might not be unacceptable to him."

This answer, wholly improper as it was, was yet so supremely ludicrous in the comparison which it suggested between the winged car of Hector and the crazy vehicle before him, that the Professor could not refrain from a smile. His sense, however, of the indignity, soon conquered his inclination to laugh. He took down Stacey's name on his tablets, and ordered him to retire immediately to his apartment and not to leave it till sent for by the faculty. "You are undoubtedly aware, sir, that an offence so gross as this will be met with the full rigor of the law."

"Indeed, I hope not, sir. Shall I take the medal with me, sir?"

"Out of the room this instant, sir!" exclaimed the Professor, biting his lips.

Robert bowed respectfully and retired. As he shut the door he had the satisfaction of hearing a low noise, like repeated laughter, and understood, at once, that the ludicrousness of the whole adventure, had triumphed over the momentary indignation of the good Professor.—Still, he knew that the offence, however laughable, was a high one, and that he must expect to pay a severe penalty. Revolving these sweet and bitter fancies in his mind, he proceeded towards his chamber; this was in the third story of Hollis, and he chanced, upon arriving at the second landing, to observe a light through the key-hole of Wilmer's door, he resolved to look in upon the solitary student, for a moment. He knocked and receiving an invitation to come in, entered. The occupant raised his eyes from his Stewart to his visiter, and, with a long-drawn yawn, requested him to be seated. The yawn, however, was probably intended for the book, as he evidently felt the entrance of Stacey as a relief, and inquired with some eagerness about the events of the evening.

"Poor Duplessis," said he, "I suppose has suffered the usual penalty of a first night's dissipation. I heard some of you carrying or dragging him to his room about an hour ago, did I not?"

"Yes," replied Robert, "I am rather sorry for the poor fellow; I never imagined that his head was so weak. The wine affected him sooner and more than I expected; first, he became lively, then argumentative, then touchy and insolent as Lucifer, and ended by seizing a carving knife and threatening to stab me on account of some foolish joke that he took to be a reflection on his family—which I know nothing on earth about—except that I have heard that his father is a note shaver. I never saw a man more furious; he drove at me like a madman; it was as much as we could do to pacify him, and convince him that I had not intended any insult. At last we made it up with full bumpers; and when he had finished his glass, he sunk under the table completely overcome.—So we were obliged to break up and put him to bed."

"Bad enough!" remarked Wilmer.

"Yes, rather bad," was the reply; "and as far as I am concerned, it will not happen again."

"I am glad to hear it," said Wilmer—and there the subject dropped.

It may appear strange, that viewing, as he did, such proceedings with dislike and forebodings, he should not have attempted to "impress strongly," (as the phrase is) on the mind of his companion the danger and f[illegible] present course. Every one, howeve[illegible] been through college knows well [illegible]ferent [illegible] no place where precept and advice [illegible] Franklin, [illegible] example and practice more. In th[illegible] a preacher or moralist may send for[illegible]ing or instructions unaccompanied [illegible] sanction orpersonal excellence, and still, [illegible] his comparative obscurity as a man, may not be able by his actions to counteract all the good influence of his writings; but at an University, where in the hourly intercourse with numbers, every individual's character and conduct is pretty carefully scanned and his motives sifted, the part of the Pharisee is very difficult to sustain; while, at the same time, real excellence is soon discovered and properly esteemed. Thus Frederick was conscious, that by his well-known temperance, attention to duty, kindness and courtesy to all, but intimacy only with the best, he was producing more good than by a dozen sermons a day on the favorite text of advisers—"Am I not better than thou?"

"But the cream of my story is to come yet," said Stacey. "It is the best joke in the mad-cap way, I think, that you have ever heard."

He then proceeded to narrate, with much graphic humor, his late exploit, in all its details, with its unlucky termination. Wilmer was highly amused by the whole account, except the end, at which he shook his head.

"I fear it will be suspension, at least, if not rustication with you; the faculty will look upon it as a grave trespass."

"Well, I suppose they will," replied his companion, carelessly; "but it will be a piece of utter injustice if they do. There's a law against firing off a gun, sword,* or pistol—but who ever heard of a law forbidding students to leave a baggage-wagon in a Professor's room. But of course the government will never listen to the cause of justice; as for mercy, they are Shylocks. But I'm resigned—as the cat said when they had finished skinning him."

"How do you imagine your father will receive it?"

"O, he will shake his head, look grave and say nothing. I am most sorry on my mother's account. But what is a suspension of a year or so? Only a little more expense, which my father can bear well enough."

Little did he imagine that his father was at that moment lying in sleepless meditation on his ruin, and the irregularities of his son.

"At all events, Fred," continued Stacey, rising from his seat, "you will have the satisfaction of knowing, that if I am expelled, I can do nothing more to mislead your milk-and-water friend. In fact, he has not shown gratitude enough for my first endeavor to incline me to repeat them. Good night."

"Good night!"

Frederick sought his bed, with the determination of going on the following morning to some of the faculty with whom he was acquainted, to make interest for Stacey—one whom with all his faults he liked, and believed capable of better things. We shall see how his friendly intentions were frustrated.

CHAPTER IV.

THE FATHER AND SON.

We have dwelt rather longer upon the foregoing scenes than might seem necessary, in order to make the reader better acquainted with those individuals who are to play the chief parts in the present little narrative. We have yet another change of scene, and a new character to present to him. Let him imagine about a fortnight to have passed from the time of the last related incidents, and enter with me into a rather large modern built house, in the centre of the city. The room to which I shall introduce him, is a parlor, not very extensive, and separated, as is usual, from another of the same size, by folding doors. The room is, on the whole, well furnished, though the eye of taste might detect certain incongruities. Thus some articles of the furniture—particularly of the least necessary kind—are newer, and of a more ambitious cast than the rest, as if their owner, in growing gradually rich had wished to display the evidence of his wealth, but was too economical to discard the witnesses of his more humble condition. Among the paintings around the room are one or two gems of Italian art—the rest are mere glaring daubs.

Of the two occupants of the apartment, one was our friend James Duplessis, who was seated before a small fire, and engaged, in a desultory conversation with the other. He was a rather tall, thin man, with a stoop in his shoulders which detracted somewhat from his height grey hair and eye-brows, a hatchet face, and quick penetrating eye. He was walking slowly up and down the room, and occasially addressing his son.

"And so, you say, James," he observed, after a short silence, "that young Stacey has gone off and left no clue by which to trace him?"

"Yes, sir," was the reply, "the very day he heard of his father's failure, he sold his furniture secretly, to pay off his college debts, and the next morning was missing. I believe he left a line for his parents, saying that they would hear of him soon.

"He was a wild, extravagant young fellow, was he not?"

"Very much so, I believe," answered James.

"Were you intimate with him?"

"Not very," replied the youth, "till toward the last"—and his cheek burned with the recollection of the last evening he had spent with the subject of their conversation.

"Yes," remarked Mr. Duplessis, with a dry smile, which amounted to little better than a sneer, "Mr. Stacey's son does not seem likely to contribute much to his happiness—in prosperity, a spendthrift, and in adversity, a beggarly vagabond. I should like to know his father's sensations at this moment."

"I pity him," said James.

"And why so," returned his father, bending upon him a sharp look. "Old Stacey is a proud, hollow-hearted man, like his son. The tree is known by its fruit."

"Robert Stacy is a reckless fellow, but I do not think either proud or little-minded," replied his son. "But Mr. Stacey—I thought he assisted you once materially, when you first arrived in Boston. I took him to be a very generous, kind-hearted man."

"You are wrong, James," replied his father, hastily; "you are wrong, sir. And you are very much mistaken if you think I am under any obligations to Mr. Stacey. When I first came here, to be sure, he received me well, and showed me some common mercantile civilities, which I have since fully returned. But of late, I have found him to be malicious and mean, as well as hard and insolent. He has calumniated me on 'Change, and endeavored to injure my trade. Pity him! you should be glad of his ruin."

"If that is the case," answered James, "so I am."

"If!" returned the other, sharply, "there is no room for an if. I tell you it is so."

A silence ensued for a few minutes, when Mr. Duplessis re-commenced.

"I have good accounts of you as a student, James. Do you mingle much with your classmates?"

"I have not, till very lately," replied James, with some hesitation.

"No? I think you had better cultivate their acquaintance. It may be of use to you in society, hereafter. I have had no leisure, during the few years we have been in Boston, to obtain many friends—that is, of the kind which I would desire to introduce you to, when you leave College. You must endeavor, also, James, to acquire the accomplishments of a young gentleman of fortune."

"There is nothing I should like better," replied the son, "but all this will be expensive—I shall need money."

"True—true—very true. And as to that matter, why, you need not be parsimonious, James. There is a note for fifty dollars."

It is a a mistake to suppose that professed money getters are those who think highest of the value of riches. They find a pleasure, indeed, in their acquirement greater than in any other pursuit; but, at the same time, they experience their worthlessness in procuring much that is desirable to all men—as fame, true respect, affection, and the pleasures of a cultivated taste. It is the poor student, who mourns over talents wasted for lack of means to develope them—the insolvent's widow, reduced to unaccustomed poverty—the indigent statesman, chained down to toil for bread, while visions of fame and influence flit before his fancy, and beckon him upward—the pennyless dandy, who flies the face of his tailor—those are they who feel most keenly the value of the yellow dross. Mr. Duplessis, in growing rich, began to regret too late his deficiencies in the refinement and learning which qualify for admittance into the society of cultivated and accomplished minds. This early obscurity, his native vulgarity and well-known character, all conspired to shut against him the gates of polished society—which open to the golden bough only when borne by the hands of an Æneas. This will account for his advice to his son, which might otherwise appear inconsistant with his character, represented above as close and mean.

"You must make every use of your advantages, James," said he, and do not stint yourself. You have some learning—acquire besides a knowledge of the usages of society—learn music and dancing—but be sure you make your terms with your teachers before you begin; they are apt to be extortionate. And you may keep a horse, to learn to ride; it will be cheaper than to hire one by the time—stable keepers are perfect leeches. And if you are invited to spend the vacation with any of your classmates, you had better go; though I do not think you can ask them to visit you in return—that is, until we obtain another house; it might not be agreeable and would cost considerable. But you can treat them at Cambridge; only do not run up bills at the taverns—they are sure to charge double the price. Still you need not stint yourself."

James, though well enough pleased to have his father's warrant for spending more freely than he had been accustomed, could not bring himself to utter his acknowledgements. He saw the worldliness of the whole advice, and felt humiliated by the vein of meanness and parsimony running through it. His father, after a short pause, recommenced.

"Who are your associates, at present, James?"

"My most intimate friend is Frederick Wilmer, a fine fellow and hard student. We are not on very good terms, though, just now."

"Wilmer! where do his parents live—in the city?"

"He has only a mother, sir—she is blind, and, I believe, quite poor; she lives in Brooklyn."

* A fact. It has, I believe, been since amended.

"Hum! I do not see any particular necessity to cultivating that acquaintance. You should associate with the rich young men—those from the city."

"Yes, sir."

"You can afford, now, to hold yourself equal to any of them."

"I hope so, sir."

"Of course, you need not be intemperate or extravagant."

"Of course not, sir."

"When that fifty is spent come to me for more. I must go to my room, now, to look at some accounts. When you leave the parlor see to the fire. I think you had better take off that large stick and lay it at the side; it will serve to kindle with to-morrow morning."

So saying, Mr. Duplessis left the room.

When he was gone, his son arose and walked the apartment with marks of agitation. "It is a bitter curse," said he to himself, "for a son to be compelled to see and despise the weaknesses of his father. Mean, mean, even in his notions of liberality. I cannot respect him, however much I desire to. And then this note—and his advice. Well, if I go wrong, I shall have, at least, parental authority for it. How often have I agreed with Fred. that a too large pocket allowance was the bane of many a fine fellow; and I know myself too well—now, at least, (he thought, probably, of Porter's and Robert Stacey) to hope that I have more stamina. Well, all that can be said, is, that my father will have me a dissipated dandy, and I," he continued with a sneering smile, "I am likely to be an obedient son."

ALTON SPECTATOR.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1837.

WILSON LUMPKIN has been elected Senator from the State of Georgia, to fill the vacancy in the United States Senate occasioned by the resignation of Mr. King. Mr. Lumpkin is a supporter of the present administration and of the Sub-Treasury bill so called.

Mr. Cuthbert, a Senator from the same state has also resigned. Gov. Schley will probably succeed him. Mr. Schley belongs to the Democratic party.

The Backwoodsman in an article on Animal Magnetism, says that "Col. Stone Editor of the New York Evening Post," is a convert to that science. This is a mistake. Col. Stone is not the editor of the Post. He edits the Commercial Advertiser, a rank Whig paper and among other numerous absurdities advocated by him is that of animal magnetism. The whole system being one of Humbug, it is natural to suppose that among other deceptions embraced by Whig Editors, this would be one. We do not vouch for the fact, but it is given as a rumor that the Editor of the has the subject of Animal Magnetism under consideration, and after despatching a certain Address he will present his views on the subject.

The account given in the Telegraph of the proceedings of the Democratic State Convention, particularly that part where reference is made to the Hon. Wm. KINNEY is not true. Gov. Kinney did not apply for a seat at all. A seat was tendered him by a vote of the Convention and at his own request, he was excused. The Telegraph comes as near the truth as is possible for a Whig to do.

BANK CONVENTION.—This notable Convention adjourned without agreeing on any time for a resumption of specie payments. Mr. Biddle's influence prevented the Convention from doing any thing definite.

ACCIDENT.

THOMAS HARRISON a native of Ireland, was killed on Tuesday last, the 19th inst., while at work in the culvert on Piasa street in this city by the falling in of the earth from above He was much bruised when taken out. He arrived in this place on Sabbath last and commenced working on Monday. He was about Thirty years of age. He has two brothers in Philadelphia, who would, perhaps like to know concerning his untimely end.

The Telegraph still continues its hypercritics upon the Democratic Address. The editor appears to have lost sight of the maxim that "brevity is the soul of wit." The abilities of members of Congress are, now-a-days, estimated by the length of their speeches. Judging from the editorials of our friend he would make a great member of Congress.

In about six weeks more, we expect to have a sublime peroration to his criticisms, if he gets through by that time. It is a long time to wait, but then such criticisms are not had every day.

Considerable excitement exists at Millwaukee and the adjacent county on the subject of the judicary. By the last Iowa news we have the proceedings of two meetings held in Millwaukee, in one of which the conduct of the Hon. Wm. C. Frasier, judge of that district is severely animadverted upon and by the other defended.—The one charging him with substituting his own will instead of the laws of the territory—of paying more attention to to what is said out of doors, than to the evidence of the cause—of having determined the cause before trial, &c. All of which are urged by resolutions, strongly condemnatory of the individuals conduct, and praying earnestly for his removal.—The other meeting attributes all these charges to malice and envy. "Got up by the members of the bar for their own individual interest." The matter will probably be brought before the Legislature, and if the judge is guilty of half of what is charged against him, he will undoubtedly be removed.

The Whigs of Galena have held a meeting at which the Hon. Dan Stone presided, to take measures to celebrate their recent New York victory. Mr. Stone is Judge of that Judicial District. Of the propriety of a Judge attending political gatherings and grog drinkings we say nothing, But it was accounted a horible thing for a Democratic Judge to attend them. Judge Stone not being indebted to that party for his elevation would have shown more regard to those who elected him by refraining, from joining in Whig Jubilees and jollifications.

CORRECTION.

Several errors having occurred in the following article in our paper of last week we republish it corrected.

The first lot of Hogs packed from Alton, at the commencement of this season, were a small drove from Greene county, received at the Packing House of Messrs. Townsend & Co., put up and shipped a few days since per Missouri Fulton for Orleans. The following statement of the immense yield, will we think, equal the best proceeds of Cincinnati pork. Great credit is certainly due to the growers, Messrs. Eldred & Woodman. We doubt much if a like number of hogs can be found (151) together in the State, that will produce as much; and question if an equal yield is again made during the season, in our place:

30 bbls.	Army Pork.
30 "	Mess do.
4 "	Prime do.
1 "	Clear pieces,
3 "	Joles,
5 "	Heads,
2 "	Tail pieces,
101 kegs	prime Lard, nett wt. 4,265,
14 casks	Ham and Shoulders, in pickle, nett wt, 11,324,

besides over 800 wt. of Spare-ribs and pieces distributed from the Pork house, and 1175 lbs. rough Lard.

By the northern Mail to-day we have numerous extras, from the Burlington Free Press of the 29th ult., the Albany Argus of yesterday afternoon, the Burlington Sentinel of the 29th, and the Montreal Courier of the 27th—all giving in shapes more or less exaggerated the accounts we published yesterday, of the contests at St. Dennis and St. Charles, between the royalists and the revolted colonists.

Free Press Office,
Burlington, Nov. 32, 1837.

DECISIVE BATTLE—THE LOYALISTS DEFEATED AND DISPERSED.

An intelligent gentleman who left Swanton last night, arrived in the northern stage this morning, brings us information of a decisive engagement between the patriots and loyalists of on Saturday night. Our informant, Mr. Sanborn, of Plattsburgh, says that an Express arrived at Swanton last night, at 6 o'clock, bringing despatches from Mr. Brown at St. Charles dated eleven o'clock, A. M. on Monday, giving a particular account of the engagement.

Mr. Sandorn says he saw the letter and heard it read, and was present at the examination of the person who brought it. There can be no mistake. The following letter from our obliging correspondent, Mr. Whittemore, at St. Albans, embodies the facts substantially as we gather them from our informant. We therefore adopt it for the present.

"Dear Sir:—The glorious news has just arrived here, which may be implicitly credited, that at 11 o'clock on the evening of the 25th inst., the regular and volunteer British forces, 1300 strong, made an unexpected assault upon the Fort at St. Charles, about 35 miles from Montreal. The assault was urged and resisted with the greatest obstinacy and most determined resolution on both sides till near morning, when the British were suddenly attacked in the rear by about 1600 patriots from St. Mathias fourteen miles distant, who, hearing the cannonading rushed to the rescue, and came up just in time to save the fort, which was about being [illegible] royalists immediately fled in all directions [illegible] the woods with the patriots at their [illegible] will probably nearly all be killed or [illegible]ers, as the patriots under the orders of Gen. Brown had previously cut off all means of retreat or escape by destroying the boats in the river Richileu, and stationing forces in the only places where they might retreat. When the express left St. Charles at 7 A. M. on the 26th the patriots were in hot pursuit. The patriots were in hot pursuit. The patriots lost in the assault on the fort about 200 men in killed and wounded. The loss of the assailants not known. They left behind them two pieces of cannon; but did not burn the village of St. Charles.

IMPORTANT FROM CANADA.

WATCHMAN AND JOURNAL OFFICE,
Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 28.

We have been favored with an interesting letter from a gentleman in Alburgh, dated the 26th, from which we make the following extracts:

Two o'clock P. M.

"An express, direct from St. Charles, has just come in; from 200 to 100 of the British troops were taken prisoners: the Colonel, a captain and 50 privates killed. The engagement was on Wednesday. 'Tis true—not a doubt of it."

In addition to the foregoing, we learn that an express from the British government, (for New Brunswick, it is said,) passed through this place last night. Rumors are in circulation that the people of the Upper Province have since risen, declared themselves independent, and taken possession of Toronto, and other important places; but we know not on what authority this is given.

By a slip from the Burlington Free Press Office, we learn that the patriots lost 90 men in the affair at St. Dennis.

Confirmation.—A gentleman from Montreal confirms the above statement, excepting that the battle of St. Charles took place on Saturday, instead of Wednesday.

From the N. Y. Evening Post.

FROM CANADA.—The Albany Evening Journal of yesterday, has the following:

BURLINGTON, Vt., Wednesday, Nov. 29.

Friend Weed—Don't be deceived. I have information direct and positive, that the Patriots were successful in the engagement of Sunday night. The British troops were defeated, and are now flying before the Patriots.

We have received from the Albany Argus a slip dated last evening, containing a confirmation of the royalist forces at St. Charles. A slip from the Burlington Sentinel of the 29th ult., contains a copy of a letter from General Brown, in which he says:

"That they were attacked by the troops on Saturday, and were momentarily repulsed, but the Patriots sallied and concentrated upon the point attacked and compelled the royal troops to retreat: the Patriots followed their advantage, and the result was that the troops were driven in great confusion to the woods, with the loss of many killed and wounded."

Gen. Brown adds—

The plan for the future operations of the Patriots was for the troops under the command of Dr. Cote, to march immediately for Montreal in the case the Patriots were victorious at St. Charles, and the probability is that Montreal if not already, will within 48 hours fall into the hands of the Patriots."

A letter dated at Montreal, 27th ult., says:

"The Canadians are rallying. There is little faith to be put in the government papers—lying is now their peculiar prerogative—since the opposition papers are stopped. The Canadians are said to be rising in various parts.

"The city is under arms—soldiers patrolling the streets, and business at a stand. No one talks of any thing save 'the news from the seat of war."

On motion,

The Convention proceeded to ballot for Governor.

The President laid before the Convention the following letter from Thomas Carlin, who had been balloted for, which was read and ordered to be printed, with the proceedings of the Convention.

QUINCY, ILL., DEC. 4, 1837.

To the President of the Democratic Convention to be held at Vandalia on the 2d Monday of this inst. for the purpose of nominating candidates for the offices of Governor and Lieut. Governor.

SIR—Presuming that my name will be put in nomination as a candidate for the office of Governor, by the Delegation from this county, who were instructed by a Resolution of a County Convention held at Columbus on the 28th day of October last to that effect, after mature deliberation, I have determined to address you and through you, the Delegation in Convention, requesting that my name should not be voted for, for either of the above named offices. A few of the prominent reasons that have prompted me to this course, I will mention. First. A great distrust of my capacity and ability, requisite to the incumbent of so high, dignified and responsible an office. Secondly. That many members of the Democratic party may be found who are eminently better qualified to discharge the duties of the office than myself, and whose prospects of success in the approaching election, I am fully persuaded, would be much better than my own—thereby securing to a greater extent the success and interest of the party, particularly as I could not possibly devote my time to election purposes, without a violation and neglect of official duty. In thus declining, to conform to the wishes of those of my friends who have expressed a desire that my name should be used as a candidate in the Convention, I believe I have thereby contributed to the interest and future success of the party. My great unwillingness to be run as the candidate for Governor, may have more influence in bringing my mind to this conclusion than I am aware of; but the most mature reflection has convinced me that it is calculated to place the political interest of the party on less precarious ground.

To those of my political friends who have desired my nomination, I tender my most sincere thanks, and will not cease to appreciate their kindness.

Sir, I hope that unanimity of sentiment and reciprocal good feeling may prevail throughout your deliberations.

With sentiments of the utmost respect,
Your very obedient servant,
THO. CARLIN.

The Convention continued to ballot for a candidate for Governor, when J. W. STEPHENSON of Galena, was declared duly nominated.

The Convention then proceeded to ballot for a candidate for Lieut. Governor, when JOHN S. HACKER, of Union, was declared duly nominated.

Mr. McClernand, from the Committee appointed to prepare resolutions, &c. reported the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, viz:

Resolved, As Democrats we repudiate as an aspersion upon our integrity, the charges made against us by the Federalists, that we are opposed to the justly acquired rights of individuals or communities, that our principles are destructive in their tendency, or that we are in anywise opposed to a fair and honest credit system, and we affirm that we are the friends of order and justice, lovers of equal privileges, now, as always, contending for the rights of the many against the unjust aggressions of the few.

Resolved, That the Democratic principle is founded on an imperishable basis of truth and justice, and is perpetually striving to sustain society in the exercise of every power which can promise human happiness and elevate our condition, that instead of warring against order, and encroaching upon the privilege of others, the spirit of democracy maintains an active principle of hope and virtue.

Resolved, That we recognise no power but that which yields to the restraints of duty, and is guided by mind; that we only seek to obtain influence by means of free conviction; that we condemn all appeals to brute force, and the exercise of every violence, and that our only means of persuasion are reason and truth.

Resolved, That our first aim is to connect our party with the cause of intelligence and morality; to seek the protection of every right consistent with the genius of our institutions and the spirit of the age. We desire to extend moral culture, and to remove as far as possible all inequalities in our human condition by embracing all improvements which can ameliorate our moral and political state.

Resolved, That the true issue before the people, is the establishment of the United States bank, or a disconnection of the Government from all banks, it therefore, remains for the people to choose between an institution, naturally hostile to popular freedom, potent to do evil, and repeatedly repudiated by them, and the return to the old and pristine doctrines of our free and happy constitution,

Resolved, That we approve of disconnection of the Government from the banks, claiming for the right to control the management of their own money, by officers of their own choice, and leaving the banks to a fair and honest exercise of the privileges granted them by laws, neither infringing upon their rights, nor permitting them by any false pretences or specious artifices to encroach upon the liberties of the people.

Resolved, That while modern whiggery is assiduously laboring to establish privileged classes, seeking to patronise the few at the expense of the many, and captiously condemns all things designed for the improvement of the masses of society, the friends of democracy are striving to abolish all political distinctions, and to establish an equality of political rights, to build up and sustain all those great public improvements, upon which the prosperity of our State and nation essentially demand.

Resolved, That we have confidence in the political principles of the Globe newspaper, published at Washington.

Resolved, That it is the solemn duty of every representative to use his delegated powers in conformity to the principles he was elected to sustain, unless otherwise instructed by the people.

Resolved, That the defeat of the democracy in some of our sister States, calls upon us for the exercise of an active vigilance, and for increased exertion.

Resolved, That we cordially and heartily concur with the frank and honest doctrines of the late Message, as being equally conformable to truth and consistent with principle, and as giving an earnest that the successor of Andrew Jackson, would imitate him in the firm exercise of that exalted patriotism and unbending attachment to the people and our Constitution, which carried away captive their political affections.

Resolved, That while some of our sister States have given way to the subtle influences of concentrated wealth, and have proved derelict to the principles they had for a long period sustained and cherished, we are proud and happy to know that our own Illinois, stands erect and firm adhering to the old landmarks, as steadfast in the support of truth as that principle is in itself immutable.

Resolved, That modern Whiggery and Conservatism, however disguised, are strictly identified with the doctrines of the old Federal party, and the history of our Union from the days of Jefferson down to the present period, clearly shows that all seceders from the republican ranks, by whatever specious name they may designate themselves, but contribute to swell the numbers of the enemies of equal rights,

Resolved, That we are called upon to exercise in the discussion of all questions incident to the principles we cherish, a proper degree of forbearance, and that we strive by a manly and temperate exercise of reason to persuade all men to co-operate with us in sustaining the principles of democracy.

On motion of Mr. Ryan,

Resolved, That this Convention having now fulfilled the objects for which it was convened according to the usages of the Democratic party, the members of the convention pledge themselves, individually to use all honorable means to sustain the nominations of James W. Stephenson for Governor, and John S. Hacker for Lieut. Governor at the ensuing election.

On motion of Mr. McFarland,

Resolved, That a Committee of three be appointed from each Congressional District of this State to draft an Address to the Democratic Republicans of this State in support of the nominations of this Convention; and also a Committee of Correspondence, consisting of one from each county in this State.

REMARKS OF GOV. KINNEY, made before the late Gubernatorial Convention, on the proposition to make him a member of the Convention.

He said that he felt sincere gratification at the respect and confidence manifested towards him by the members of the convention, in inviting him to take a seat among them, and to participate in their proceedings; but there were peculiar circumstances connected with the primary meeting held in his own county, which rendered such a step on his part, improper, in his opinion. The primary meeting had not expressly authorized the delegates elected to fill any vacancy in their numbers—moreover, one of those delegates was his son; therefore, delicacy and a proper regard to the will of his own fellow-citizens whom he loved, required that he should decline the honor the Convention had so kindly conferred upon him. But in declining to take his seat, he did not wish to be understood as being opposed to the Convention. He trusted his long tried fidelity to the principles of Democracy, would preclude the possibility of such a suspicion. He wished the Convention might proceed with great unanimity and harmony, and that he would feel great pleasure in acting in accordance with the wishes of a Convention so respectable in numbers, and so exalted in intellect and appearance as that now assembled before him.

CONVENTION OF BUSINESS MEN.—A general convention of business men was held in Philadelphia on the 15th inst. Numerous resolutions were adopted—among them, one providing for the appointment of a committee to prepare and publish an address to the citizens of the United States in relation to the objects of the convention—and the following:

"Resolved, That the convention recommend to the Congress of the United States to discontinue the sale of public lands—to have the same surveyed and laid off in lots of about forty or fifty acres each—and that one such lot be given to each person who shall cultivate it and make permanent settlement thereon.

That all persons who shall take up their residence on such lots, on entering their intentions at the nearest land office, shall be entitled to a certificate of such entry; and at the expiration of five years from that time, shall receive a deed of such lot, provided that they shall have continued to cultivate the same during that period.

Aliens, who may desire to become citizens of the U. States, may take possession of and enter lots as aforesaid—and on receiving deeds of their lots at the expiration of five years, may become citizens of the U. States, on making the usual declarations.

The heirs of such persons as may die before the expiration of their respective terms shall be entitled to all the right of the persons whom they represent.

The Boston Advocate has made some good and true remarks about the federal Postmasters in Massachusetts. It says—

"We wish that Mr. Kendall, who declines making removals on political grounds, could see the returns of his whig postmasters of the election, in which they invariably designate the democratic vote under the head of Tory. A postmaster who thus insults and belies the administration, and the people who support the administration, ought not to be tolerated in office an hour. The insolence of the whigs, in this matter, is unbearable. They have stolen a name that does not belong to them, and yet their opponents permit them to hold it. But not content with stealing the name of whig, they brand their opponents as tories; and petty little postmasters copy the insult from the opposition press,

This exhibit shows that the sum of $8083 00 has been issued of City Scrip.	8083 00
The amount placed in the hands of the Clerk for disbursement, before the election of J. C. Bruner, Treasurer, was disbursed by him, as per report of the special committee, on accounting officers, dated Oct. 20, 1837,	900 00
Showing the amount placed in the hands of the Treasurer,	$7183 00
If you deduct from this amount the amount of orders drawn on Treasurer,	6366 59
Leaving a balance of City Scrip in Treasurer's hands unexpended of	816 41

To the forgoing statement of the Receipts and Expenditure, by the Treasurer, of the City Scrip; the undersigned has thought that it would probably be acceptable to the Common Council, to have exhibited before them a statement of the Revenue of the City, and of her debts and liabilities; I have therefore prepared the following.

City of Alton		Dr.
To amount of disbursements City Scrip by Treasurer	$6366 59
To amount of disbursements City Scrip by Clerk	900 00
		$7266 59
Estimated amount of undrawn orders		260 00
Rent of Court House per year, deducting am't. to be paid by Episcopal Society—leaving		500 00
Rent of Jail		250 00
Salary of the Judge of the Municipal Court		1000 00
Estimated amount of Jurors' fees, Constable's attendance, and other incidental expenses, of the Municipal Court; each term	$250 00
four terms, making		1000 00
Estimated amount of salary of am't. now due Aldermen for attendance, and of the am't. of the remaining nine mo's.		1000 00
Mayor's salary		150 00
Estimated am't. of Clerk's salary, from three to four hundred dollars, say		400 00
Probable balance to be paid S. Grubbs on acc't. of his con't. for building bridge across Shields' Branch—not exceeding		600 00
		$12366 59
To am't. ordered to be paid to the Committee on the Piasa contract		1000 00
		$13366 59

Contra	Cr.
By Tax book and assessments in hands of Collector, per his report, 20 Oct., 1837	12998 96
By am't. of assessments of Jury on lots, &c., on account of widening Second-st. west of State, and which am't. the City has paid Mr. Manning	1350 00
Est'ted. am't. of Revenue, arising from Licenses	700 00
Am't. due on account of Special taxes for completing side walks	145 75
Estimated am't. of cases in Municipal Court, 600 in the four terms, and docket fees arising therefrom, $2 50 each	1500 00
Estimated amount of fines	250 00
	$16934 71

From the foregoing statement, the Common Council will perceive, that, after deducting the amount of City Scrip in circulation, and the amount ordered to be paid, salaries and estimated amount of expenditure, as per the debit sheet, from the aggregate amount of Revenue, there will still remain in the Treasury the sum of $3568 12.

The estimates are made from correct data, and I confidently believe that the result will not vary much from the calculations.

On the 20th day of March next the first payment will become due to the Piasa Contractors	5000 00
Reserving the sum of $568 12 from the amount in the Treasury to meet expenditures for the relief of Paupers, and other incidental expenses, there will still remain to be appropriated towards the Piasa payment, the sum of	3000 00
Leaving a balance of	$2000 00

By a reference to the debit side of City account, the Council will see, that the estimates of expenditure for the year ending 1st Sept., 1838, amount to a sum exceeding $4500 00—not more than one half of which will be due or drawn from the Treasury, on the 20th of March next—leaving a sum under the control of the Council, more than enough to discharge the whole amount of the payment due on the 20th March next.

From this exhibition of the Financial condition of the City, it is manifest that the corporation is abundantly able to meet all its engagements, and that no reason exists for a depreciation of any of its paper, particularly as the City Scrip now in circulation among us will all be paid into the Treasury, or current notes in its stead, on account of taxes, in the course of the present month. But it cannot be denied that endeavors, partially successful, have been made, and are making to depreciate the Scrip of the City as a circulating medium in the community, by interested persons. It is evidently the duty of the Council to do all in its power to counteract these efforts, and to sustain paper issued by its authority; and as one means of producing this end, the Council will pardon me for suggesting, the propriety of requiring the Treasurer to report to and bring into the Council, the amount of City Scrip received from the collector on account of taxes, monthly—which amount, when reported, shall be destroyed or withdrawn from circulation. By this process the City Scrip will, in a very short time, be withdrawn from circulation, and the less there is of this species of money among us, the higher will be its credit.—The effect of the withdrawal by this prompt process will be renewed confidence in the ability of the City to redeem its pledges, and if the Council should think proper in the spring to recommence public improvements by means of City Scrip, based on the revenue of next year, (which will not fall short of $15,00) the credit of the City will not only be unimpaired but increased. All which is submitted.

F. B. MURDOCH, Cl'k, Com. Council

For the Alton Spectator.

MR. EDITOR:—The Democrats in the State of Illinois have cause to congratulate themselves, in the selection of JAMES W. STEPHENSON, as a candidate for Governor, to be supported by them at the next August election. Almost every county in the State, was represented in the Democratic State Convention, by whom the above selection was made. Its proceedings were conducted with harmony and good feeling; and will meet the approbation of the entire Democratic party. Our opponents cannot say that this selection was the result of a caucus, subsequently adopted by the party, in the form of a proceeding by Convention. Those who composed the Convention met unpledged to any individual with no other motive than to choose such men as candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor as would carry out the leading principles of the present administration, and the leading principles of the Democracy throughout the United States. In the election of the nominee of the Convention there is a confidence felt that those principles will be fully sustained. James W. Stephenson, is a gentleman in whom the Democracy of Illinois have great hopes. He is affable, intelligent, and of sterling integrity. He is the son of Col. Benjamin Stephenson, one of the members of the Convention held to draft a Constitution for the State of Illinois. James W. Stephenson was nurtured in this State having come here when quite a child. He has been a member of the Senate of this State, and in that capacity acquitted himself with credit, and to the entire satisfaction of his constituents He has been receiver of the Land Office at Galena, in which capacity hundreds of thousands of Dollars have passed through his hands; and when that appointment was surrendered by him to fill the office of Commissioner of the Board of Public Works for the 6th Judicial Circuit, he settled with the General Government, and paid over promptly all the money due to Government. He has always been an advocate of Internal Improvement, and was a strong supporter of the law to construct the Illinois and Michigan canal. He was in the war of 1830, and 1832, again at the Indians, and was severely wounded in an engagement with them. He is an advocate for the divorce bill, the design of which is to separate the General Government with all interference with Banks as its fiscal agents; and to leave the creation of Banks, their powers, their privileges, and the modification of their charters, to the discretion and wisdom of State Legislation. He is a Democrat by heart, and will use his influence in every station in life, to dispense equal privileges to all; and will resist to the utmost of his ability every attempt of a bloated aristocracy, to retrench the liberties of the people.

The gentleman nominated as Lieutenant Governor, is comparatively a stranger to the writer, but from report he is declared to be a gentleman, a friend of the present administration, and an advocate of equal rights. The friends of the Democratic party in Illinois are called upon by the voice of their Convention held at Vandalia, to unite and give their entire support to the nominees of said Convention. They are individuals in whom we recognize all the political principles for which we now contend, and against whom the voice of political slander may be raised but without success. It is to be remembered that in Union there is strength.

NO. 2.

MR. EDITOR:—I would wish to propound through your paper the following additional queries to the President and Directors of the State Bank of Illinois.

1st. Whether they are aware that a certain person, (said to be one of the Directors of one of the Branches of said Bank) after selling a large and valuable estate consisting of real and personal property attempted to and endeavored to sell the same property a second time to another person and without the knowledge or consent of the first purchaser of said estate, and while the first sale was in full force.

2d. And whether they are advised that a person said to hold the office of, President. of one of said Branch Banks, endeavored to aid and assist said person to effect the sale of said estate a second time as above mentioned.

ARISTIDES.

For the Spectator.

MR. EDITOR:—Allow me to call the attention of the public through the medium of your paper to our Lyceum—stated meetings of which are held every Friday evening, and an address and discussion on some literary subject are given. The address at the last was highly interesting, the gentleman as a public speaker promises much. The discussion for the next eve are the comparative merits of Washington and Buonaparte. To our young men I would say, if you wish to improve your minds, cultivate your mental powers, and be useful to yourself and the world; attend the meetings and engage in the discussions.

VERITAS.

BREACH OF MARRIAGE PROMISE.—A case of this kind of some interest, has recently been decided in Baltimore County Court. It was that of Louisa Wallace vs. Dr. John Sappington. The parties are both of Harford county. The trial came on last week, and the case was submitted to the jury on Saturday evening, who brought into court a sealed verdict on Monday morning, in favor of plaintiff, with damages to the amount of $5000. We learn that Messrs. Constable, Lee, Jenkins and Martin, were counsel for the plaintiff, and Messrs. Johnson, and McMahon for the defendant.—Baltimore Republican.

Thos. Fitzgibbon Moore—or the Irish Protestant Constable in Newfoundland.—The following account of an M. P. P., of Newfoundland, by himself, is certainly laughable enough.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY, Aug. 27, 1837.

Mr. Winser begged to inquire of the Hon. member from Trinity, if he was not himself a constable for the southern shore of Trinity Bay?

Mr. T. F. Moore said he was, and that too for 18 years, and he verily believed he was the worst paid officer, not under the Crown but under Heaven, for he only got three-quarters pay, during that long service, and he would say above board that there was not an individual in the whole island who did half so much for the country as he did and was worse paid. When he was first returned to the House of Assembly he was dismissed from the office of Constable by Governor Prescott on that account, and shortly after that Governor Prescott dismissed him from the House of Assembly, for he ordered the House to be dissolved. (Laughter.)

Mr. Winser would be glad to know if the Hon. member was since re-appointed to the office of Constable.

Mr. T. F. Moore said he was not to his knowledge, but he would again tell Mr. Winser that there was not a single man in the country, he did not care who he was, that did so much real good for the whole Island of Newfoundland, and was worse treated than himself, Tom Fitzgibbon Moore. He had taught Sunday school for 14 years, and other schools, (laughter) and for 14 years more he did, ten to one, aye, he would say a hundred to one, more than any priest or parson in the island, for he married, baptized and read the burial service regularly—(much laughter) yes, regularly and devoutly, Mr. Speaker, and he did more, for he married himself, made his wedding ring and christened his own children.—(Roars of laughter,)

Alton, Sept. 7, 1837.

A Grand Speculation.

I AM authorized to sell, at a very moderate price, the following tracts of land, which were entered by a party period by an experienced gentleman, to whom, in 1834, the north half of section 1, and the south half of 36, 13 N. in township No 13, north range No 5, west of the second meridian, in the vicinity of Mount Carmel, White county, Illinois. Also, Section 30, township 5 south, range 5, west of the second meridian, in the county of Rock Island.

Section 34 embraces a very fine mill seat on a beautiful stream called Rock river, with a considerable log house and several field in cultivation. All of these lands are within a convenient distance of a new and great mill, now in successful operation—only from two to four miles distant, and within two miles of the bank of the Mississippi river, and from twelve to fifteen miles below Rock Island city. These lands have been selected with great care, and are well proportioned as to wood timber, prairie, and water. A further information, will be given by

J. B. BUNDLEY, Agent.

CLIFTON.

THE town of Clifton is situated on the East bank of the Mississippi river, 12 miles above Alton, in Madison county, Illinois. The surface of ground is remarkably high and healthy, the soil is more regular and better adapted for improvement than Alton. The town is laid out in lots of 60 feet front by 120 feet deep with streets the property on account of some of the lots being sold at public auction, and others at private sale, at a good profit to the purchasers. The landing will soon be improved and extended as it now is, by the owners of property immediately on the bank country are unsurpassed, scarcely equaled, by any other place in the western country, except the mouth of the Illinois River.

The advantages for building are not common to new towns. A steam Saw Mill has been in successful operation on the bank of the river, for four years, within county affords a supply of excellent timber, and the Alton and Shawneetown Road leads through a fine bed of fine stone, a quarry of which has been for some time in successful operation immediately on the road leading to the premises. The stone is of a superior kind, and is in demand for building purposes in Alton and other towns in the vicinity. The facility of access from the country and the vicinity of stone from the river, will be a great advantage to the purchasers of lots in Clifton—to such persons too will be given preference in the purchase of lots, who will make improvements upon the property, and they pledge themselves that no lots will be sold to speculators, but only to those who will make improvements upon the property, and to the improvement of the streets and other landing.

To enquire into the title of lots in St. Louis and Alton too high for their means, we beg to remember that lots can be had at Clifton for one hundred dollars, for building but an obligation to improve them. A plat of the town may be seen at Alton, Illinois.

VEGETABLE RHEUMATIC DROPS.

MANY articles are before the public, as a cure for Rheumatism, but none have been presented to Dr. Hankinson; and from close observation we are led to believe that this remedy is a very good article, fitted to produce that desirable result; and may it not be unfitting for us to say that we have known cases of long standing disorder, are also recommended to cure almost every case of Rheumatism that has been introduced, and in their preparations that object is kept in view; and we are led to believe that they will accomplish it.

The Vegetable Rheumatic Drops are offered to the public as a remedy for Rheumatism; and as we most sincerely believe that they are worthy of the public, we are justified in declaring it a valuable medicine for the disease for which it is recommended, and recommend it.—Price 50 cents.

VEGETABLE BLOOD PURIFIER AND LIVER PILLS;
(DR. C. WHIPPLE'S)
PREPARED BY
THOMAS S. BUTLER,

THIS preparation is offered as a remedy for removing all morbid matter from the various organs of the liver, impurity of the blood, and foul stomach and bowels. It is also a safe and effectual remedy for sickness, flatulency, dizziness, dimness of vision, headache, pain in the side, back, and limbs. They are purely vegetable, perfectly safe and accommodated to the weakest and most delicate constitution, and are at once safe and efficacious. Purely Pill. They impart a healthy action to the liver, and remove every impurity and sickness or pain, and banish all causes in fact of disease from the system, and are the best and safest purgative ever offered to the public.

From the certificates received of their efficacy, the following are but a few of the many cases in which their suitability is deemed sufficient to publish:

Mr. Butler has been induced to make the study and practice of medicine my daily avocation by their sale, and having used the Vegetable Universal Blood Purifier and Liver Pills, in my own case as well as many others, I can say that I find the former, with the most decided success; knowing them to be the best article for the purification of the blood now, and in such part proportions of each as to produce the most beneficial effects. The latter are a most excellent family pill. I can therefore cheerfully recommend them to the public.

Yours, &c. JOHN C. BRUNER.

WHIPPLE'S VEGETABLE UNIVERSAL BLOOD PILLS, have a specific relation on this majority, which is the blood, and by their action on the blood, restoring to health. Thousands of persons can be referred to, who have been cured by the use of these pills, among which are Influenza, Colds, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Bad Blood, Rheumatism, Fever and Ague, Piles, Bilious Scrofe, Typhus, Yellow and Common Fevers of all kinds, Consumption, Liver Complaint, Sore Eyes, Ringworm, Pimples, Inflammation, Fits, Dropsy, Small Pox, Measles, Whooping Cough, Croup, Sore Throat, Female Complaints, Worms, Jaundice, Asthma, Nervousness, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Swelled Feet and Legs, Piles, Tetter, Erysipelas, Mercurial Disease, and all other impurity of the blood.

Observe, these pills are not corrupt and vitiated humors from the system, and leave the blood pure and healthy, and the system in a healthy state.

The weak and delicate will be strengthened by their use, but by removing the cause only by means of weakness, namely: the gross, corrupt humors accumulated in the blood. Thus the system will be left healthy, pure circulation accompany every act, to that end, and health will be the result. Dr. Whipple says, Those Universal Blood Purifier Pills can never be obtained genuine except from the subscriber, or his authorized agents.

Be very careful, all ye that want the genuine, and not be imposed upon by unprincipled and designing Agents, that Brandreth's sooner be signed on yellow paper, with the signature of Dr. Whipple on the back, in a bold black writing.
